

CONFIDENTIAL

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director of Central Intelligence
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: Domestic "Country Team" Concept

1. I've noted that in a number of cities in the United States we have different types of representation: Security and Recruiting. I wonder if they always work in full concert and if we appear to the American public to be one organization or several. For instance, if we're working on a college campus, all these organizations may be involved. It would seem quite likely to me that some of the administrators of the campus could find themselves confused between the various elements of the CIA with whom they are dealing.

2. Overseas the Ambassador is in charge of a country team. I wonder if in each city/region we should not have a "country team" concept with one individual in overall charge? He would not tell the other offices how to do their individual business, but he would be kept informed of what they were doing and act to avoid conflicts or overlaps.
